

ROSHI PORKAR

University of Applied Arts, Vienna, Austria

Porkar is Vienna's quietly rising star, having nabbed both the Chloé prize at this year's Hyères Festival and a solo show at Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week Berlin with her graduate collection, designed under the tutelage of Bernhard Willhelm. Porkar's silhouettes have a sense of theatrical 1980s polish - a look she has honed assisting stylist Karl Templar, and at Lanvin. roshiporkar@gmail.com

PETER DO

Fashion Institute of Technology, US

Do regards textile development as one of the few outlets for genuine innovation. His streamlined separates are crafted from slabs of neoprene, pleated micro-suede and other plastic textiles, all manipulated into each other through heat bonding and quilting. He took home the LVMH prize this May and landed an invaluable one-year contract at Céline. peterdonyc@gmail.com
